for Oil and Salt Wells,
American Charcoal
Iron Boiler Tubes, Lap Welded Tubing for Steam and Water.

SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF
W. C. ALLISON'S
PATENT JOINT
Oil Well Tubing.

This Superior Tubing is furnished with heavy sockets, and is cut with a vanishing screw thread, corresponding exactly with the thread in the socket, so that when screwed up it has a bearing the whole length of the joint; and the absence of a deep thread on the tube at the end of the socket obviates the liability to break at that point from the vibration caused by the action of the pump.
Each length and socket is stamped with our trade mark, and is carefully tested before shipment with a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch.

MANUFACTURERS OF
LAP-WELDED OIL WELL
Tubing & Casing.

We would call the particular attention of dealers and producers to this make of Tubing and Casing. One of the important features in the manufacture of our Tubing is, that the
are made perfectly straight, smooth and uniform, thereby giving equal and great strength to the tubing throughout.
Each joint carefully inspected, reamed at end, and proved with the sockets on at a hydraulic pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch before shipment.
Each length stamped with our trade mark,

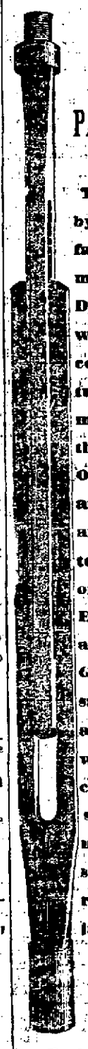
PATENT STEEL JARS.



The undersigned hereby give notice to manufacturers and parties making, selling or using Drilling Jars made of wrought iron or steel combined, that by virtue of certain assignments duly recorded at the United States Patent Office, we own the sole and absolute right, title and interest in three patents for Drilling Jars; one granted to James C. Eastman, in July, 1867, and two to Edward Guillod, in May, 1868; said patents covering all Jars made of wrought iron and steel combined, and applied substantially in the manner represented in said patents, and generally known as steel jars.

Griffin's Patent WATER PACKER!

This is one of the most useful Patents for oil operators ever invented. It has several advantages over any other Seed Bag or water packer in use. It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use as there is no waiting for seed to swell and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d. It can never fasten tubing or casing in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.

Mr. Vallandigham Dead.

From the New York Independent.

When one who has been so distinctly occupied public attention, dies, and one where his moral questions are settled by the Supreme Judge, his friends at once make an inventory of his virtues, and even his severest critics are foolish, if not as polite, to condemn and criticise of his life. None wishing wickedly to think a fallen foe, especially if his fall has been attended with circumstances calculated to excite human sympathy.

Mr. Vallandigham, now that he is dead by his manly nature of his own hands, will undoubtedly receive warm tributes from many, at least, of his Democratic friends. One paper has already spoken of "his superb intrepidity," "his consummate clearness," "his unsectional patriotism," and "his Spartan virtues of life and death." These are certainly very high compliments to pay to any man, whether living or dead. They come, and the more, and largely, the approval of his public record. The Republican and religious press will not and cannot, without the greatest inconsistency, speak of Mr. Vallandigham in any such laudatory terms. Those who so severely condemned his course both during and since the war must entirely reverse their previous judgment in order thus to deal with his name. The fact that he is dead does not make one hair white or black in respect to what he did when living. His record is no better and no worse because finished. That stands just as he himself has made it.

Whatever may have been the personal qualities of Mr. Vallandigham in the private relations of life, there is no escaping the conclusion that if he was right in the course which he pursued during the war, then the nation was monstrously and wickedly wrong in its course. He took sides with the rebellion, gave it all his sympathies, opposed all the war measures of the Government, and did everything in his power, except actual fighting, to make the rebellion a success, and the war for the Union a failure. In short, he was a rebel in feeling as strictly as Jefferson Davis or General Lee. His conduct leaves not the slightest room for doubt on this point. No sympathy for him, sleeping in his grave, can ever change the fact, or modify its moral features, that he placed himself practically with the enemies of his country in the hour when it most needed friends. Those who eulogize the man dead, must, of course, approve of the man living. In a word, commendation of Mr. Vallandigham, whether living or dead, is necessarily condemnation of the Government and the people for putting down the rebellion by force of arms.

Passing by his private life, and speaking only of his public career, we have repeatedly and severely censured the record of Mr. Vallandigham; and we now see no occasion to take back a single word. The motto of burying one's faults with him, and remembering only his virtues, is hardly applicable to such a case. History will not and should not deal thus leniently with his name. The rebellion, with which he sympathized, was one of the greatest crimes known in the annals of the world. It had not the slightest justification in any injuries either inflicted or threatened by the general government. Its great purpose, as admitted by Alexander H. Stephens, was to perpetuate slavery, and extend its area—a system which John Wesley described as "the vilest system upon which the sun ever shone." It was armed treason against the finest, purest, and mildest Republican government under which any people ever lived. It proposed, as the means to the end, the dissolution of the Union, with all the prospective damages and dangers, certain to arise therefrom in the event of its success. It was a patriotic and religious duty, when all means of conciliation had failed, to crush this rebellion by the sword. No other course was left. The nation made, or the rebellion must be conquered. For four long years the Northern people, at a vast expenditure of treasure and blood, fought this armed treason, and at last overwhelmed it. Were they right in so doing? If not, then it is never right to suppress a rebellion. Then civil government is a sham, not having the right to exercise the powers necessary to the preservation of its own existence.

To present this question in some of its details, was the talented Lincoln right in his calm and persistent purpose "to conduct the Government to final victory?" Was the Congress of the United States right in devising the ways and means for successfully prosecuting the war? Were the soldiers and officers who constituted the Federal forces right in fighting to preserve the Union and save the nation from being disintegrated and ruined? Was the pulpit right in praying for the success of the army, and so preaching as to encourage and encourage the public heart? Were the people right in lending their money to the Government, and straining every nerve to sustain it in the day of its peril? Is the nation right in now honoring the living who fought and survived the struggle, and decorating the graves of the heroic dead who fought and fell?

These questions supply their own answer to every man who had the head and the heart of a patriot during the war; an answer, moreover, which never changes with time. The Government was right; and its triumph was not simply that of might but was of right. The Rebellion was a crime, and it was the duty of the Government to put it down. So we thought then, so we think now, and so we shall think hereafter.

Mr. Vallandigham did not stand with his country and its cause in this struggle for the right. He was found on the side of its enemies, and this is the ingloorious record that will go to posterity. Brought to be condemned, it was condemned while he was living, and his death furnishes no reason for changing this judgment. His so-called "New Departure" indicated no softening of his old unpatriotic and pro-slavery principles, but was merely a professed acceptance of results against which he had fought with all his might.

We believe it to be a duty to hold up such characters to public scorn, and warn all men not to imitate their bad example. The fact that they believed themselves right, though it may modify the degree of their guilt in a court of conscience, no more justifies their wrong than it did Saul of Tarsus justified by a like belief when persecuting the disciples of Jesus. Let the day be far distant when a sympathizer with such treason may cancel his offense by an honest faith in the treason. There are some errors of judgment which no man can innocently commit. There are some obligations in respect to which every one is bound to think right, as the antecedent of doing right.

Perforating Mount Cenis.

"Here we are," said our guide, "just about under the highest point of the Grand Vallon. I suppose there is a mile and a half of solid rock right over our heads. We are three miles into the mountain. They are a little further on the other side; for we met some harder rock than they did, which made us go slower. And this," he continued, rattling a piece of machinery, "is our effuste, or, as the French call it effut, which in English means just 'carriage.' The nine strings which you see peeking away at the hard rock are the perforators; or, as we call them in French, perforatrices—Mademoiselle Borers. This is what has done the work of boring into the Alps."

Instructed as to what the affair has done, we look upon it with a kind of reverence; though what we see, as shown in our illustration, is novelty remarkable. Take an ordinary locomotive engine, remove the furnace and boiler, and you have a fair idea of it. There are pipes, wheels and handles in bewildering confusion, and a score of men, who seem to know what they are about, in all sorts of attitudes, managing the whole. The one thing which strikes us as new is the nine rods, looking like the long antennæ of a beetle, from each of which something comes out and is right over just the face of the rock.

"Count the strokes from one of these," said our guide. Watch in hand, as though we were timing a racer, we count. In a minute there are just two hundred strokes.

"Each blow," said our guide, "has a force of two hundred pounds, quite as heavy as are given by a miner with a sledge-hammer. Did you ever count how many blows a miner will give in a minute?"

We had seen mining operations enough, but had never thought of counting the number of blows. We went through the operation with our canes, as nearly as we could, and found that we made about twenty strokes in a minute.

"That's about fair," said our guide. A miner, with an assistant to handle the drill, will give about twenty hammer strokes in a minute; but not more than five pairs of workmen could find room to work here at once. They would give all at once a hundred blows a minute. Now, Madame Adam, with her nine daughters, the Perforatrices, give eighteen hundred quite as heavy, in the same time. To be sure, the madame and her daughters want about a score of men to wait upon them. But she and they manage to strike eighteen hundred blows a minute, while it would take one hundred and eighty men, with hammer and drill, to do the same labor, even could they have found space in which to work, which they couldn't. Don't you see?"

Again we saw, and were abashed.

"Look again," said our guide, with professional enthusiasm, "and you will see how it all works. Our motive power, as you know, comes from the water-wheel at Fourneaux, which condenses the air. Thence it comes up where we are. We have got our power where we want it, in the effusto. We use it just as though it were steam. See that cylinder; in it works a piston, to the end of which is attached a drill. Now, when the air is let on, it drives the drill against the rock; and when the air is cut off, back comes the drill. Look again, and you will see that at each stroke the drill turns around a little. To make this rotary movement takes more than half of the machinery which you see; but it must be done. In hand-work one man turns the drill while the other gives the blow. Effusto does both; the stroke the blow and turns the drill. Again, iron striking stone educes fire. We must put this out as fast as it occurs. So you see that, with each perforatrice is a man, holding what looks like a common garden hose, through which he throws water into the hole made by the drill. You see that each perforatrice works independently of all the rest, so that any change in the movement of one does not affect the others. Moreover, which you will hardly notice, each has a flexible joint, so that the drill may be directed up or down, to the right or the left, as may be required. Ah, there you see; that drill near the middle has gone deep enough, and they are going to have it make a new hole.

The drill to which our attention was called was withdrawn, and put at a point a yard distant. For a minute or two it seemed to strike "wildly," as pugilists say, as if not knowing just where it meant to hit. A man with a hooked rod guided it for a little, but as soon as a hole a few inches deep was made, the drill worked of itself.

"How deep do you drill?" we asked.

"That depends upon the character of the rock. In this, through which we are now passing, about a yard. In the hard quartz which we met awhile ago, when they got a start of us on the other side, we went only half as deep, and that was fearfully hard upon the drills. In ten minutes they got so blunted that we had to change them. As it is, we are out about a hundred and fifty drills and two perforators for every yard we gain. Mr. Sommelier estimates, all told, we shall use up a couple of thousand of the Mademoiselles Perforatrices before we get through. If we get off with the loss of that number, it will be less than I expect. The general idea is to drill about eight hours at a time, and then blast. To clear away the stone takes about half as long as it does to do the drilling; so that generally we blast twice a day. A day with us means four-and-twenty hours; for the work never stops. We work in gangs, eight hours on and sixteen hours off. Eight working hours out of the twenty-four, I dare say, seems a short time to you; but it has been found to be as much as men can well do in this atmosphere. We know only two holidays—Christmas and Easter Sunday."—From The Mont Cenis Railway and Tunnel, by A. H. Guernsey, in Harper's Magazine for July.

Thankless Service.

The good women in the English story books go about among the cottagers distributing tracts and peace, and are courteously, politely, answered reverentially, and addressed as "my lady." You go to a poor family in an American cottage—tumble-down, no doubt, but two stories high as long as it stands at all. Your poor family feel as good as you, and carry themselves rather more loftily, to do away with any mistaken impressions that may be made upon your minds by broken windows and torn gowns. You are as wary in your approaches as if you were besieging a city. You give ten times as much in market value as the English novel woman, and lal they say among themselves, and report drifts around to you in twenty-four hours, you have money enough and things enough to keep or give away. You might just as well spend the money that way as any other.

And you knowing how many desired and desirable things you do without for want of money, feel a spasm of resentment and have a great mind never to give them another cent. Virtue is not sufficient unto itself. It is not enough that cold feet are warmed and hungry mouths fed. You want the cold feet and hungry mouths to know that you did it, and to be grateful to you for it. I don't believe this is wrong, for it is the natural impulse, and it is better for the beneficiary that he feel grateful. But his gratitude is not necessary to the measure of your benefactions, is it? You must go on bestowing alms, ministering to necessities, denying yourself luxuries, even by way of relieving a plethora of purse and wardrobe, just as readily, as if you were blessed by a grateful cottage as an angel sent from heaven.

You have a theory about servants. You believe them to be human beings, governed by the same laws as yourself, and, you act out with most friendly feeling to do justly, and love mercy, and walk softly toward them. You are careful to afford them comfortable rooms pleasantly furnished, sufficient leisure, and occasional Foreign News.

LONDON, June 23.

Lord Augustus Loftus will probably succeed Lord Bloomfield as British Ambassador at Vienna, and Sir Augustus Paget, now Envoy to Florence, become Ambassador at Berlin in place of Lord Loftus.

Lord Belper, new Vice President of the University of London, has been appointed to succeed the late George Grote as President of that institution.

It is said that Napoleon is about to take up his residence in Parish, Mainhead or, Devon.

PARIS, June 23.

The report that Count de Paris has arrived at Versailles is unfounded. There is great apathy in Paris in regard to the election. Marquis de Gabriac, French Charge D'Affairs at Berlin, has arrived in the German capital.

The Official Journal publishes a decree recalling to their posts all furloughed treasurers, receivers and collectors to receive subscriptions to the loan. The Official Journal also publishes immense lists of amounts received by French consuls and ambassadors in foreign countries in aid of the victims of the war.

Marshal McMahon has issued an order abrogating former negotiations permitting the sale of inflammables. By the new order retailers are forbidden to keep on hand at a time over two hundred litres of such material, and all persons who disobey this order will be tried by court martial. Manufacturers and dealers in arms and ammunition are also required to submit to the restrictions upon the fabrication and sale of this article.

The French mail service for India and China will be re-established in July, leaving Marseilles once a fortnight, Sunday.

FLORENCE, June 23.

The Chamber of Deputies opposed the bill for reorganizing the army, and are now engaged in the discussion of measures of public safety.

BRUSSELS, June 23.

A letter from the burgomaster of Brussels congratulates the Civic Guards on the patience and energy which they have exhibited, and their readiness to act during the recent disturbances.

KINGSTON, June 23.

Advices from St. Thomas to the 17 inst. state than on the 4th the troops of Baez, numbering from 1,200 to 1,500, had attacked about an equal number of Cabreal's forces, at San Juan. The latter were defeated with heavy loss, including two cannon captured, Gen. St. Clair killed, and eighteen prisoners, and the camp equippage taken. When Cabreal saw it was necessary for him to retreat, he ordered the powder magazine to be fired, which was done, and nearly the whole town of San Juan was destroyed. Baez during the action remained at Azeus, but has returned to the capital since.

The laying of the cable is progressing favorably, and already it has reached Guadlope and the Dominica Islands. The steamer Florida remains in port, but it is reported she will go to La Guayara, Venezuela, at the end of the month. Dates from Caracas, Venezuela, are to the 6th: Gen. Galasara had gone to New York on his way to Europe for a pleasure trip. He settled his difficulties with Blanco by accepting a large amount of money and leaving the country. This destroys the chances of success of any revolution against Blanco, as the remaining bands of revolutionists are of little account. The Cubans residing in Venezuela, together with Quesada, are said to be assembling at Puerto Cabello and preparing for some expedition.

LONDON, June 23.

In the House of Commons to-day two fruitless attacks were made on royal privileges. One was a proposition to build a much needed public road through the grounds and by the side of Buckingham Palace, and the other was a proposal to sell unoccupied palaces, such as St. James and Hampton Court, and apply the proceeds to the reduction of the public debt. Both were rejected. Gladstone and the Whig members were conspicuous in their devotion to the crown and their antagonism to the measures proposed.

It is rumored that Prince Arthur is to be made Duke of Ulster, and that the government intends before the prorogation of parliament to introduce a bill for the purchase of a royal seat in Ireland. The cable between Hong Kong and Shanghai is repaired, and communication is again established.

BRUSSELS, June 23.

Baron de Arethon informed the Chamber to-day that as far as known of the Communists under arrest in Paris, 165 are subjects of Belgium. He said the Belgian government had not asked for their release nor did it intend to, but it is expected and the government would see that they had a fair trial.

VERSAILLES, June 23.

In the Assembly to-day the Minister of the Interior stated that it would be inopportune to raise the state of seige of Paris at present, but the government would allow citizens every liberty in the coming elections not inconsistent with public safety. The public utterance of insurrectionary doctrines and inflammatory appeals could not be permitted.

The Assembly appointed a committee, previously agreed to, to revise the decrees of the governments of Tours and Bordeaux.

PARIS, June 23.

A letter from M. Louis Blanc is published, declaring the Republican party, hitherto a farce, must become a power.

Liberty reports that a violent quarrel took place yesterday on the boulevards, between the promenaders and a party of Prussian officers. In consequence of this affair Marshal McMahon has requested the Prussian commander to prevent his officers from entering the city.

The stringency of the passport system has been increased, and arrests continue to be made among the prisoners sent to Versailles within the present week, are a considerable number of well dressed and well appearing men.

New York News.

NEW YORK, June 23.

Edward Nevins, recently convicted of forgery of tickets on the Erie Railway, was to-day sentenced to five years in the State prison.

The National Executive Committee of the Union League is in session to-day at the St. Nicholas Hotel, ex-Governor Wm. A. Newell of New Jersey, presiding. There are present Gov. Geary of Pennsylvania, Gov. Jewell of Connecticut, and Peerham, of Maine, Jno. McAuley, of Alabama, Major McQuade, of Pennsylvania, Messrs. Finkney and Alexander of New York, and Goddard of Brooklyn. The Secretary, Thos. G. Baker, read a report of the condition of the League, upon which there was considerable discussion. Addresses were made by several gentlemen, and some business of a private character transpired. The committee adjourned to meet at Cape May in July.

A terrible affair occurred Tuesday on the barren island which lies between Coney Island and Far Rockaway, on Long Island. A fisherman named Dan Rider, while fishing near by, landed far water. Upon gaining the beach Rider was first attacked by three savage bloodhounds, who lacerated his limbs in a fearful manner, but he nearly succeeded in regaining the sloop, when five more dogs fell upon him, throwing him upon the beach and gnawing his back and breast frightfully. Capt. Petley, of Belfort, and a friend, who were in a yacht near by, witnessed the affair, and hastened to the rescue. Rider was found nearly dead from loss of blood, and the clothing stripped from his body. There are no hopes of his recovery.

The Olympics, of Washington, to-day defeated the Eckfords by the following score: Olympics—0, 0, 5, 3, 2, 0, 1; 0, 0—11; Eckfords—1, 0, 0, 1, 0, 1, 0, 0, 0—3.

The riot in Bloomfield, N. J., mention of which was made yesterday, was really a very serious affair, and for a long time threatened to end in a collision between the opposing parties. The excitement among the people of Bloomfield and Newark was very great, and application was made by the town authorities for an injunction to restrain the Railroad Company from continuing the bridge. At an early hour this morning Meeker and Hedden, contractors for the bridge, arrived at the scene with a large force of men, who are said to be well armed, and announced their intention of holding the ground against all opposition. As the citizens are generally determined a conflict is imminent unless the authorities interfere and prevent bloodshed.

Oliver Charlick, President of the Long Island Railroad, was entertained at a banquet last night by the citizens of Riverhead, L. I. Charlick made a speech, saying he would soon make the Long Island Road a direct route to the Eastern States.

Contracts Awarded.

WASHINGTON, June 23.

The following contracts for transportation of Indian supplies were awarded by the Indian Bureau to-day: To Chick, Brown & Co., of Kit Carson, from Kit Carson, Col., to forts Defiance and Wingate, Las Penas agency, $1 per 100 lbs. per 100 miles; John H. Coad, of Omaha, from fort D. A. Russell to Red Cloud agency, $1 45 per 100 lbs per 100 miles; D. J. McCann, of Nebraska City, from fort D. A. Rapell to Whetstone agency, $1.75 per 100 lbs. per 100 miles.

Judge Busteed.

Judge Busteed, of Alabama, was examined to-day by the Southern Outrage Committee. He said he did not believe any such organization as Ku Klux existed in Alabama. Person and property are as safe there as in any State of the United States. He was questioned as to the testimony of the Rev. Mr. Lakin, parts of which was read to him. He said it was entirely untrue. Lakin had represented that thirty-three indictments were found in Busteed's court for violation of the civil rights bill, and had been tried, but in truth there was only one indictment found and that had not been tried. In reply to a question, he said he knew a man by the name of Warner who applied for exemption from jury duty in his court in 1867, or 1868, on the ground that he was a Senator from the State of Ohio at that time.

Weather Report.

WASHINGTON, June 23

The barometer this afternoon has fallen from Wyoming Territory to Arkansas, thence to Lake Erie and northward of this line It has also fallen slightly in the South and mid Atlantic coast. The area of low pressure, Thursday evening north of Lake Ontario, has moved eastward, and the barometer is now rising in New England rapidly. The temperature has risen to-day in the Ohio Valley, but is now falling in the extreme northwest. Northeast winds generally prevailed during the day from Lake Ontario to Wisconsin, and northwards. The wind is now fresh and very variable from Arkansas to Lake Erie and thence to Iowa, with indications of local storms. The weather is reported cloudy, and threatening from Lake Erie to Iowa. Probabilities—It is probable a severe storm will pass from western Iowa to Ohio, with lesser storms to the southward. Extended threatening weather is probable for Saturday from the north and eastward.

St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 23.

Four hundred and eighty thousand city renewed seven per cent. gold bonds, to run twenty years, were sold to-day by the Mayor and Comptroller to the National Bank of the State of Missouri, at ninety-eight.

The Committee appointed by the City Council to investigate the alleged fraudulent issue of City Treasury warrants, reported to-night that $55,000 had been over issued, that the over issue had been traced to the administration of Comptroller Deggeler, who served from 1867 to 1869. A resolution was adopted instructing the City Counsellor to bring action against Deggeler and his surities to recover the amount.

Ned. O'Baldwin, the pugilist, who has been here for a few days past, will issue a card to-morrow challenging Tom Allen to fight him for $2,500, or more, the mill to come off not less than four months from signing the article.

General Thomas F. Charlep, Superintendent of letter carriers, was removed to-day for political reasons, and Colonel E. H. Jamison appointed in his place.

Bridging and Tunneling.

PITTSBURGH, June 23.

J. Edgar Thompson, President of the Pennsylvania Railway, has been in this city several days consulting with the authorities in relation to a plan for bridging and tunneling at all street crossings intersecting the company's tracks in the city limits, some five miles in length. A proposition has been submitted by the company, agreeing to build all the bridges and superstructures of tunnels at their own cost. The city, by way of compensation, is asked to vacate Grant street from Seventh to Liberty, and one or two squares of other streets in the vicinity of the Union Depot. If the proposition is accepted by the city, work will be commenced and large sums expended in these improvements. To carry out the plan will require ten or twelve iron bridges and tunnels. The ground proposed to be vacated is located in the heart of the city, and very valuable.

Express Robbery.

MOBILE, Ala., June 23.

A notorious thief entered the southern bound express car on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, Sunday morning last, overcame the messenger and threw out the safe, which contained a large amount of money. The safe was subsequently found broken open. The thieves were tracked to this city and two of them arrested, and with them was found a portion of the stolen money, and the remainder, it is thought, will be recovered. One of the prisoners is an escaped convict and a desperate character.

NEWARK N J, June 23.

The citizens of Bloomfield and the railroad company have compromised, and the trouble is at an end.

Count Moltke on the German Successes.

Count Moltke says in a letter to the poet Oscar von Redwitz, who addressed to him his "Song of the new German Empire": To the poet it is permitted to be prodigal. He sows with full hands diamonds and pearls, the stars of heaven and the flowers of the earth, and in the same spirit he bestows his praises. In this sense only can I receive your song comparing me to the great men of the past. These have been great also in adversity, and especially in adversity. We have had nothing but successes. Let it be called chance, destiny, fortune, or the ways of Providence—men alone have not done it. Conquests so great are essentially the result of a state of things which we can neither create nor dominate. The excellent but unfortunate Pope Adrian had the following words engraved on his tomb: "How different is the action of even the best of men according to the times in which he lives! More than once the most capable have failed owing to the invincible force of circumstances, while a less capable has been carried by it to success." If I see myself constrained, not by a false and vain modesty, to consider as not deserved part of the praises bestowed on me, I am not the less indebted for them; for verses like yours may last longer than many a bronze or marble monument.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

Money and Stock Market.

NEW YORK, June 23.

Gold opened dull and steady, at 112¾@112¾, but late in the day the market became firm and 112¾ was bid on the prospect of a large shipment to-morrow. From 1@3 per cent. was paid for carrying.

Clearances, $33,000,000.

Governments are firm, showing a slight advance over yesterday's prices.

The more active issues in Rock Island stock are not yet over to-day, and there was a full crop of injunctions and attachments, which invariably followed such financial catastrophies as the one recently witnessed on the Stock Exchange. The market opened dissatisfied, at times being strong and at others weak. There was considerable pressure to sell active on the list, under which was a sharp decline in Lake Shore, Rock Island, Ohio, Northwestern and Union Pacific. L. and St. Joe has been noticeably weak, declining from 86 to 81 The market at the final close, was feverish and unsettled, most shares being down to the lowest point of the day.

Money easy at 3@4 per cent.

In southern securities Tennessees are stronger. The remainder of the list is neglected.

New York Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, June 23.

Dry Goods—For woolen goods adapted to autumn sales there has been an improved demand and slightly enhanced rates, which are not yet seen by buyers, and indication are that later in the season, there will be a marked advance established, as raw material is going up rapidly. The buoyancy in common goods, consequent upon the marked advance of raw material, has the tendency to impart buoyancy to the woolen goods market also. Agents are making up the prices of most classes of common fabrics, but this advance has not yet extended generally to the jobbing trade, which is quite still. All classes of goods that do not show advance are held with increased firmness, and we have reason to believe that many classes of goods, with carpets, will be further advanced after the 1st proximo Utica wide sheetings, both bleached and unbleached, are up 2½c per yard.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Valuable Hints.—A regular habit of body is clearly essential to physical health and clearness of intellect. Nor is this all. Beauty of person cannot co-exist with an unnatural condition of the bowels. A free passage of the refuse matter of the system through these natural waste pipes, is as necessary to the purity of the body as the free passage of the offal of a city through its sewers is necessary to the health of its inhabitants.

Indigestion is the primary cause of most of the diseases of the discharging organs, and one of its most common results is constipation. This complaint, besides being dangerous in itself, has many disagreeable concomitants—such as an unpleasant breath, a sallow skin, contaminating blood and bile, hemorrhoids, headache, loss of memory and general debility.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters remove all these evils by removing their immediate cause in the digestive organs, and regulating the action of the intestines. The combination of properties in this celebrated preparation is one of its chief merits. It is not merely a stimulant or a tonic, or an antibilous agent, or a narcine, or a blood depurent, or a cathartic, but all these curative elements judiciously blended in one powerful restorative. It leads activity and vigor to the inert and enervated stomach, relieves the alimentary canal of its obstructions, and gives tone to the membrane which lines it, gently stimulates the liver, braces the nerves, and cheers the animal spirits. No other remedy possesses such a variety of hygienic virtues. It is to these characteristic that it owes its prestige as a household medicine. Experience has proved that it is as harmless as it is efficacious and honest it is as popular with the weaker sex as with the stronger.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are sold in bottles only, and the trade mark blown in the glass and engraved on the label, is the test of genuineness. Beware of counterfeits.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—The Rev. F. Gordon Carnachan will preach in the Presbyterian Church, of this city, on Sabbath morning and evening.

THE Rector of the Episcopal Church of this city will hold service D. V. to-morrow afternoon at Hydetown, in "The hall of the Union School Building," at 4 p. m.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.—There will be preaching at the Universalist Church to-morrow at 10.30 a. m., and 8:30, p. m., J. Murray Bailey, Pastor. Sunday School immediately after morning service. Seats free. All are invited.

DRAINAGE.—Extensive improvements are going forward on Pine street, between Perry & Franklin, to admit of thorough drainage.

A FULL attendance of the "Americus" B. B. C., is requested this afternoon, to practice for the game on next Tuesday with the Senecas. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come out and play. Game to be called at 4 o'clock.

RUNAWAY.—About one o'clock yesterday afternoon a horse and buggy were standing hitched to a telegraph pole in front of the Citizen's Bank, on Diamond street. It commenced to rain, and a gentleman passing along opened his umbrella, which started the horse, and he broke loose. Upon turning the corner into Spring street the buggy was upset, which greatly impeded the progress of the affrighted animal, and he was finally caught by Charles Topliff. One of the shafts of the buggy was broken, but otherwise not much damage was done. The establishment was owned by Mr. Confer, of Enterprise.

STRIKING SURFACE OIL IN CORRY.—The Corryites are considerably excited by the discovery of oil which rises on the surface of the water in a well sunk to the depth of twenty-five feet on Ridge street, on the south side of their city. This is nothing very extraordinary, as it is merely surface oil. Every now and then we make the same discovery here. It was only yesterday that the men engaged in digging the foundation for the Roberts block next the Parshall House, on Spring street, found similar indications. It is, however, no evidence that oil exists in a paying quantity.

HARVEST apples (death's harvest) are plenty on our streets, while peaches, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries, gooseberries, currants, cherries, and other "bivalves" are plentiful.

BASE BALL.—The match game of base ball which came off yesterday between the "Eagles" and "Pacifics" resulted in favor of the former by a score of 21 to 14. It was a well played game, and the Eagles won it by hard work. They now claim the championship of the city, and say they do not propose to play every club that comes along, but will rest until the Fourth of July, on which occasion they will contend with the "Americus" club for the prize offered by the city for the best playing. The Eagles propose to join the procession on the Fourth, when they will wear their new uniform. The contestants entered for the prize on the Fourth were the "Eagles," "Pacifics" and "Americus." The "Eagles" having beaten the "Pacifics," leaves only two clubs in the field, "Americus" and "Eagles."

WE were shown yesterday, the tail end of a black bass that when entire weighed two pounds and three quarters, and was caught in Oil Creek Lake by a lady. We are assured that the trolling there is excellent, over twenty "snags" were caught in half an hour's fishing, and one was so large it got away with the hook.

A LARGE STABLE AND BARN.—Mr. Frank Fowler has erected a new boarding, livery, and exchange stable, on Pine street, one door east of Jonathan Watson's brick office, and seventy feet back from the sidewalk. The lower story is divided off into fifty open and box stables, fitted with cast iron feed boxes and hay racks. There are also iron stall cords between the stalls. The harness room is thirty feet long by ten feet wide; and is supplied with the latest style of patent harness hooks. There is also a roomy office and a sleeping apartment for the grooms. An artesian well gives an abundant supply of fresh water to the premises. The upper floor is partitioned off into a large carriage house in front, in the center of which is a dummy elevator for raising the carriages. The rear will be used for a hay and straw loft. There will also be an additional three story brick building erected in front during the summer, which will extend to the sidewalk. The premises will be ready for occupation next week.

DENIER'S NOVELTY THEATRE.—The programme offered at this place of amusement to-night is an excellent one. Messrs. Peasley and Fitzgerald, two excellent clog dancers and song and dance men, make their last appearance. Mr. Mike Foley appears in his different acts, which are very amusing, and in addition we have Miss Maggie Willett and Miss Lizzie Warren in their songs and jigs, Mr. Denier in his monkey and gymnastic acts, Mr. Sandford and Mlle. Emma in their fancy dances—the whole concluding with the drama entitled the Heroine of Galway, in which the entire company appear.

A GOOD LAW.—By a recent statute passed by the New York Legislature, druggists and druggists' clerks must undergo an examination by a Medical Board, and have their qualifications tested and approved before they are allowed to prepare and dispense prescriptions. Such a salutary provision should be adopted and enforced in all the States.

T. T. U. No. 144.—There will be a regular meeting of the Titusville Typographical Union, No. 144, at Brown's Music Hall, Odd Fellows' Block, this (Saturday) evening, at 7½ o'clock.

By order of the President

WHITEFISH, trout, and all kinds of fish at the fish market opposite the Bush House.

The Mechanics of Titusville—No. III.

We attempted to show in our last article on this subject that our whole community were the losers by the non-residence of the families of so many of our mechanics. Of course this must necessarily be the case where two-thirds of the wages that are earned here by at least five hundred mechanics are spent or invested elsewhere. And all this loss is simply for the want of reasonably cheap tenements and homesteads for the working classes. Let us look a little closer at this view. A married man's family will average, we will say, four or five persons, besides himself, so that if there are five hundred non-resident mechanics here who are married men, as has been estimated by the census taker, if there were an adequate number of homesteads here, we should speedily have an addition of nearly one-fourth to our present population of ten thousand. And this, too, without adding to the number of employments, or the present number of working-men in our city. But to go further, it can not be doubted that if five hundred working-men will come here, in spite of the disadvantage of separating from their families, an equal or perhaps greater number would locate here, provided cheap homes were placed within their reach and means. And to support this additional population, and to employ them, new industries would be developed, as well as old ones magnified. And not a citizen or business man here but would share in the fruits of this accession to the number of the working class. Our hotel keepers are always ready to bear a large share of the expense of getting up a celebration, or any exhibition which shall draw a crowd to the town, whether it be a rope walking or a balloon ascension, or what not, and they can afford to do so, because it gives them a chance to feed the multitude for a few meals and lodge them for a night. It is equally to the advantage of any of our citizens who have any commodities to sell, or any talent for hire to have one or two thousand people added to our home population, and to swell the list of their customers and patrons. It is necessary that there should be a popular movement to get up a Building Association. The enterprise is too large to be handled single-handed, by any one. The mechanics' help cannot come from his own class; it must come from without. It is not necessary to base such an appeal upon any philanthropic sentiment or benevolent principle. Building associations, as organized and managed in a score of cities in the United States and Canada have paid from the start, are considered the best investment of capital, much safer than bank or railroad shares. The mechanic does not ask for a loan or a gratuity. He wishes to be neither a beneficiary nor dependant. A building association, however, could buy a tract of land and erect a large number of commodious dwellings and rent them at twenty dollars a month and make twenty per cent. by the investment. If such a chance were held out to the mechanic, if his rent could apply on the purchase of his tenement, we should see Titusville doubling her population in a few short years, and all classes would share in the fruits of a policy as profitable and wise as it would be just and generous. The movement must be a popular movement. It is idle to expect that the owners of city lots or suburban tracts will abate their prices, and it would not be reasonable that they alone or chiefly should be called on to make sacrifices. It is not in human nature to sell a lot to a mechanic for $300 on long credit, when an oil producer stands ready to pay $800 to $2,500 cash down. The land proprietors would not withhold their countenance from a project of such palpable utility and public weal; but they are not responsible for the high price of real estate. No doubt there are wealthy men among us, who could, if they were minded, supply this deficiency.

It is easy to tell a wealthy man how to invest his own, and through what channels his bounty should flow. But he is never thankful for such advice, and can perceive no difficulty in a camel's going through a needle's eye. We have a score or two of men in affluent circumstances here, men who are rich in barrels of oil not only, but in machinery, in bank stock or Government bonds, in business property, in successful business, in various ways. Some of them know what it is to earn one's bread by the sweat of the brow, and the privations, needs and struggles of laboring men to find work, to get one's due, to raise and educate a family, to secure a home. There are in this class some generous men and public spirited citizens. But we have not many, if any, at all notable or remarkable in the line of benificence. It is a common remark that Titusville, which is one of the richest cities of the country, is still deficient in a public library and reading room and a city park, the gift of private liberality and munificence. Our Peter Coopers are, so far as can be ascertained, in a crystalic state, and we must wait for some miracle of nature or grace to let them loose from their earthy folds and fastenings. It would be a grateful and gracious office for any man to lift the burden from the poor and plant some roses in his rugged pathway, but we are not sanguine of the appearance of any such divinely commissioned benefactor. A building association must be a popular movement. It might properly emanate from some representative mechanic, who has risen by his own industry, skill, and intelligence, and who combines practical wisdom with personal sympathy. But we believe there are few business men or capitalists who would not give a building association, under judicious auspices, the consideration its importance demands, and the aid it merits. We should like to have the practical views of some friend of the project. We are sure it has no enemies.

Commencement Exercises at the Union School.

The examination, yesterday, at the Union School, of the graduating class, was well attended by scholars and teachers, but we were sorry to see so few visitors. The occasion was one which should have brought out a large crowd of friends of the school, for the day marks an era in the history of Titusville and its schools, as the date of the graduating of the first class in Titusville.

The Union School building was built in 1866, and the school established on a first-class basis. It was determined to combine in it a primary, intermediate and high school, and with that intention in view the best instructors were procured to conduct the different departments. As the city grew in size and population, the demand for admittance of scholars into the school became so great that another building of the same size was required to accommodate them. The result is seen in the beautiful building erected on the corner of Drake and Walnut streets, a school edifice that is not surpassed by any in the State. Now we have two schools that are an honor to the city, and which reflect credit on our school board.

The exercises yesterday were short but very interesting, and consisted chiefly in the examination of the senior class, composed of three ladies and two gentlemen, viz: Misses Ella M. Henderson, Jennie Shugart and Nellie Davis, and Masters J. H. Isham and Louis Hyman.

The class was first examined in Geology by Mr. Minor. Each one of the class was assigned a topic and drew upon the blackboard diagrams of the different Geological Ages, viz: the Silurean Age, Carboniferous Age, Age of Reptiles, Age of Man, and Classification of Rocks. They were then separately questioned on the topic assigned them. Mr. Miner complimented the class very highly for the correct and prompt manner in which they had answered his interrogations.

Mr. J. J. Carter then examined them in Natural Philosophy, and in every case the answers were given promptly and without hesitation or embarrasment.

Mr. Jesse Smith, President of the Board, then addressed the class in a few complimentary remarks, after which Professor Taylor favored the audience with some music and a song.

Mr. Minor being called upon to present the diplomas prefaced the presentation with the following remarks:

MY YOUNG FRIENDS: As you are the first to complete the regular course of study prescribed for the schools of Titusville, and thus occupy the position of pioneers, in what we trust will be a long and honored list in the future, it may be proper in presenting to you the evidence of your present attainments, to accompany them with a few suggestions. The first we make is this, that you should not regard these diplomas as authority for permanent rest, or ceasing entirely from study or labor, but rather that while you look upon them as certificates of honorable progress to this time, and as having completed the first great stage of educational life with distinction, you look upon them also as passports to still wider study and greater achievements.

What you have here learned is as but the alphabet compared with what is before you. Here, in these schools, you have been taught the elements of practical life, and have learned the starting points of the various departments of business. The wide avenues of trade and commerce are, however, all open to you, and there are fields requiring your skill and most preserving thought and energy.

There are mountains yet full of iron and silver and gold which are to be mined and utilized. There are hills full of coal yet to be excavated and placed in position for the comfort of man.

And many parts of the earth are yet stored with oil, which is to be produced, refined and placed where it can aid in giving light to the world. There are seas yet to be covered with commerce, and railroads to be built where now not even a trail exists through the forest.

You have also learned somewhat of natural philosophy, geology and other departments of science. Here, too, your labors are only commenced. The air is full of mysteries yet unsolved—the depths of space are just beginning to be fathomed, the earth is only slightly understood, while the sea teems with wonders hitherto undiscovered, and is full of important uses hitherto undeveloped.

Above, below, on every side study, labor, skill, are in demand.

You have also entered upon the elements of moral science. Here, too, is room for progress as well as in mental training. You know the higher we ascend, the purer we find the air. So should it be with us in all respects. The greater our knowledge the purer should be the heart, the better and more useful the life.

But one thought more, and that is that you should not expect great or desirable results in all cases to flow at once from your labors. There will be full opportunity in practical life for the exercise of all your endurance. Some flowers, you know, are called "constant bloomers," others are in blossom once a month, others bloom every year, while others require the labor, the watching and patience of an entire century before they give signs either of blossom or of fruit. So is it often with human endeavor and its rewards.

Learn therefore to labor and to wait. Be not weary in well doing, for in due time you shall reap if you faint not.

It remains for me only to present to you these diplomas which we do by authority of the Board of Directors, and in their behalf and in behalf of your teachers and friends, express to you our sincere wishes for your health, happiness and true prosperity.

Professor H. C. Bosley, the former Principal of the school, was called upon and made a few appropriate remarks.

The diplomas awarded to the graduating class were designed by Colonel Elwin L. Pitcher, with pen and ink and were gratuitously executed by Mr. Samuel Grambine, assisted by Messrs. Imus and Peirce. They are excellent specimens of penmanship, and exhibit considerable artistic skill on the part of the gentlemen who executed them.

Miss French's "A" class were examined on Thursday in the presence of Messrs. Henderson, Phelps and Berry, of the School Board. The visitors expressed great satisfaction with the proficiency of the pupils, and the order of that department. A marked good feeling prevails between the teacher and scholars, and a cordial sympathy of purpose is shown in this proficiency and thorough understanding of each subject discussed. Fourteen pupils pass from this class to the High School, or Academic department, at this commencement.

Prof. Boistle, the principal of Union School, has been in the school only about six months, but during that time has accomplished a great deal in the way of assisting in perfecting the senior class for graduating. The Professor is an accomplished instructor, having had an extended experience as a teacher. The school under his charge has been well conducted, the discipline careful, and in every way he has given good satisfaction.

BASE BALL.

How dear to my heart is the green covered ball
field,
Where gold rival captains their men rightly place,
The pitcher, the catcher, the right field, the left
field,
The good men, the true men, who guard well
each base;
The short stop so lively, the centre field handy,
The ball a-d the striker who aims to send high,
But dearer than all to the hearts of good fielders,
Is the leather clad base ball we catch on the fly—
The jolly old base ball, the well covered base ball,
The leather clad base ball we catch on the fly.

The Big Time Coming.

The General Committee met at the Bank parlors on the evening of the 22d, and was called to order by the Chairman, Colonel Keese. Reports of sub-committees ordered. The Secretary read a communication from Rev. Henry Purdon to the effect that if in the city on the 4th of July, he would be happy to accept the invitation of the Committee to join with them in the procession. The Secretary also gave a verbal report from Rev. Mr. Bignell to the same effect. The Committee on Ordnance read a communication from the Chief of the Ordnance Department, Washington, stating that orders had been issued to furnish us with a gun and caisson; also as much ammunition as we wanted, at cost price. The committee reported that they had sent for the cannon and one hundred rounds of ammunition, and that the whole was expected here in a few days from the Pittsburgh arsenal.

The Secretary stated that he had telegraphed to Taylor Hose, of Meadville, to visit us on the 4th, with apparatus.

Upon motion a vote was passed inviting all citizens who were familiar with artillery practice to report to Captain Easterly or Captain J. W. Jewhurst.

Moved that Captain R. H. Lee be added to the Committee on Ordnance. Carried.

The Committee on Ordnance reported that they had secured the services of Gen. J. H. Martindale, of Rochester, N. Y., as orator of the day.

The Committee on procession reported the following additional turnouts:

W. P. Howe, four horses, fancy wagon.

M. Shannon, two horses, men making brooms.

J. Wiel & Co., two horses, pop corn factory.

E. Barry, two horses, steam bakery.

J. Ulman & Bro., two horses, dry goods.

U. S. Express

Swartz, three wagons, six horses, brewery.

M. B. McManus, four horses, bull and band wheels.

E. D. Clark, two horses, tin shop.

M. Hendershott, two horses, milk wagon.

Myers, two horses, milk wagon.

George Custar, two horses, milk wagon.

E. Parsons, two horses, milk wagon.

Moved by Colonel Ned. Pitcher, that the milkmen be compelled to fill their cans with milk punch, mild, for the sole benefit of the General Committee, and that the Committee take their Pitcher with them. Unanimously and uproariously carried.

That noble old veteran, the Generalissimo of Ol Bumphisticated Squizzlers, reported large additions to his already full ranks, whereupon the General Committee went at once into secret session. * * *

It was voted that the Finance Committee be instructed to procure a suitable prize to be presented to the winning base ball club, on the afternoon of the Fourth of July. The time of the game is to be announced hereafter.

A communication was received from Mr. P. Goodwin, tending the General Committee a complimentary dinner at his hotel, on the afternoon of the Fourth, at such hour as would be convenient to the Committee.

Upon motion, the invitation was accepted, and a vote of thanks extended to the gentleman for his courtesy.

The Printing Committee reported that they had gotten up the posters, and would have them out in a day or two.

Upon motion, the Committee adjourned to meet next Tuesday evening at the bank, at eight o'clock. N. L. WILLARD, Sec'y. of Gen. Com.

FISK'S OPERA BOUFFE.—This organization, which gives two entertainments in this city June 30th and July 1st, is the same that performed at the Grand Opera House, last winter, and is under the management of Henry C. Page, of whom the New York Globe recently said:

"He is probably the most useful man connected with the establishment. He has had a very extended experience in connection with places of amusement and the knowledge then gained can not help but make him a valuable auxiliary to any proprietor of a place of public entertainment. He has charge of the front of the house, attends to the advertisements, distributes the complimentary tickets of admission, and sees that the press gives the Opera House its due share of attention. In the evening, he is exceedingly active, with his hat off and a bouquet in his button-hole, he may be seen flying around from the box office to the ticket taker, from him to the ushers, from them to Mr. Fisk's box, and from this to every body of anything that needs his attention. He has a nervous, almost confused manner, and from the anxious expression upon his face the audience would almost suppose that the success of the establishment depended upon his exertions. He is an enthusiast in theatrical and musical matters. He thinks Aimee the finest actress that ever trod the Opera House boards, believes Pasini a little angel, though the small elephant in Les Georgiennes a big thing, and the big elephant simply immense. He laughed himself nearly sick over the antics of the soldiers disguised as gypsies on the opening evening. He recovered, however, the next morning. Page recently went to Chicago with the "Twelve Temptations." There he gained laurels as a manager, but the air of that locality not agreeing with his constitution, he returned. He is a good fellow and the accounts of his theatrical career will furnish a bright page in the history of the stage."

A Suggestion from a Revolutionary "Claimant."

Editors Morning Herald:

The call in your paper to celebrate our independence causes me to suggest to the appointed "orator of the day," an idea that might somewhat relieve the stereotyped monotony of Fourth of July speeches. Let him give his hearers this little history (correcting the mistakes.) At one period of our revolutionary struggle many officers of the army, finding themselves without means to support their families at the time, or to make provision for them for the future, resolved to quit the service. General Washington influenced Congress to pass a bill giving to every officer who would serve until the close of the war, half pay for life. Almost all accepted the terms, and after its conclusion another arrangement was made to commute half yearly pay for life to full pay for five years. This was paid in Continental money, worth about twelve cents on the dollar. When the country became rich and almost out of debt, an effort was made in Congress to pay these people, or their heirs, in good money, deducting what once paid at its real value. This would have been the veiu of an honest individual becoming bankrupt, but restored to fortune. This bill originated in the Senate and passed unanimously. It was not reached in the House that session, but was passed there in the next session by a large majority, and was sent back to the Senate and lost by one vote. The reason given was that these claims had passed into the hands of other parties, speculators, &c. Such a reason would apply with full force to the present indebtedness; but the true one was that the heirs had no political strength. This debt was a thousand times smaller than the present one, was not in the hands of foreigners, and was a debt of gratitude. The party or individual that writes under our great load of debt and taxation now is branded with dishonesty. The revolutionary debt was not large enough to be a "national blessing," but still of sufficient importance to the claimants to suggest its honest payment. Would it not be best (when the orator has got through with the American eagle, &c.) for the committee to offer something like the following toast: "May good digestion wait (not) on appetite," but on honesty.

How to Consume Smoke—Interesting to Refiners and Others.

The art of consuming smoke in furnaces has long occupied the attention of engineers. In the densely populated cities of England, which are the seats of immense manufacturing establishments, the smoke at one time became so dense that darkness and cloudiness of the sky perpetually obliterated the beautiful clearness of the sun's rays, and gave a most sombre and dejected aspect to every surrounding object. Then it was that engineers and chemists put their heads together to devise the most practicable method of effecting a cure. The principle involved was simply a want of oxygen, to consume the carbonaceous particles of which smoke is composed, or in other words, the lack of sufficient air to insure perfect combustion. A mechanical or forced draft, in contradistinction to a natural draft, was found to be a most perfect remedy, and that was employed where mechanical power could be obtained. But all furnaces did not have this power, and consequently various methods of improving the natural draft was resorted to. It was also found that heated air, when supplied in a sufficient quantity, answered the purpose much better. The expansion of heated air, however, rendered the details of arrangement for admitting it a matter of serious difficulty. All these obstacles have long since been effectually overcome, and it is to-day illegal to run a furnace in the foreign cities without a perfect smoke consumer. It was also found that a great saving in fuel was the result, and the law is consequently anything but burdensome. In this country where originally anthracite coal was chiefly employed in our eastern manufactories, this smoke-consuming principle was for a long time lost sight of. Now, however, that an immense amount of bituminous coal is consumed on this side of the Alleghanies, the question of smoke consumption becomes one of paramount importance, both in a sanitary and an economical point of view. In refineries especially, where spent tar is in numerous cases mixed with the already highly bituminous coal, the necessity of adopting smoke-consuming contrivances, becomes more apparent. Several of the still and boiler furnaces in this region, have an apparatus connected with the rear of the fire box, intended to partially remedy the defect, but in most cases, judging from the immense volumes of dense black smoke which issue from their chimneys, it is evident that they are total failures. This brings us to an explanation of what will do the work, and we cannot do better than give the sketch of a trial which took place in Pittsburgh the other day, at the foundry of Messrs. John B. Heron & Co., on Twenty-first street, with Mr. W. F. Beecher's patent smoke consumer. The following description appeared in a Pittsburgh paper:

"His invention consists in an appliance whereby the flame and smoke from the burning fuel are made to pass through a corrugated throat, immediately back of the fire-bed. As the flame passes through this irregulary shaped flue, or throat, it is thinned and broken up, and at the same instant intercepted with counter currents of heated air, drawn into the fire from the front of the fire-box, and passing along the side of the fire-box through a hollow wall, or chamber, from which it is drawn into the flame through a slit in the corrugated flue—one current rushing in on the top of the flame, and the other from the bottom, thus treating the flame so as to consume all the soot and smoke. What is designated as the corrugated flue, is cast in two pieces, and fastened together, leaving the aperture for the passage of the air from the outside. This flue also forms a bridge-wall for the end of the boiler to rest upon. After the fire-bed has been supplied with fresh coal, all draft in front is cut off, and the air supplied in the manner just described. Several experiments were made by throwing in fresh coal, and stirring it up until the smoke was seen issuing from the top of the stack in a dense volume. Then the draft in front was cut off, and in a short time—say from ten to twelve seconds—the smoke would cease to issue almost entirely, and in a few minutes there was not the slightest trace of smoke discernable. This was repeated several times, and with uniformly the same success. It was a fair, practical demonstration of the fact that coal smoke can be consumed, and any person who is in the least incredulous should call and see for themselves.

"The inventor feels confident that he has found and applied the true principle of combustion, and has no fears of failure. He is applying the same principle to the cooking and heating stove, and will give the public the benefit in due time. Every citizen is interested in this matter, and they should satisfy themselves by personal examination."

Chautauqua Lake Notes.

—It is difficult for strangers to understand the language of the old inhabitants who reside near the lake. Part of them talk pickerel, mixed with a smattering of muscalonge.

—The camp meeting grounds at Fair Point, are being cleared up and made ready for the serious business to be commenced there next week.

—The side-wheel steamer "Chautauqua" is one of the attractions at the lake now, and whether on her regular or excursion trips, Capt. Murray keeps everybody good natured around him, and is truly what A. Ward calls a "genial whole-souled feller as ever lived."

—The propeller Jamestown which alternates with the Chautauqua is making trips between Jamestown and Mayville, is a popular and fast boat, and her commander, Capt. Grandin, knows how to make a party of pleasure-seekers feel as contented as though they were in their little beds. Both of these boats can be had for picnics or excursions of any kind, and will make extra trips between the camp ground and all points on the lake next week.

—Mayville is at the head of the lake, and not at the foot, as many suppose. The waters flow out at Jamestown, and from thence into the Alleghany River.

—One old gentleman from the West became so excited, by listening to the fishing stories of some passengers on the Jamestown last Monday, that he tore up his suspenders for trolling lines, and tied his gold spectacles to them for a pickerel spoon, and went to fishing over the stern. He had a bite and lost his tackle, and now can't see so well as formerly. If any one catches a fish with a pair of spectacles on they can obtain a reward by giving them to the old fisherman.

—No one ever caught a fish at Chautauqua Lake except strangers, who left suddenly next day, without leaving their name or address. The pickerel caught this season have all weighed from seventeen to thirty-one pounds.

—Children born near the lake never have a gold or silver spoon in their mouth; it is a pickerel spoon if anything.

—The "oldest inhabitant," who resides at Pendergast Point, remembers distinctly when a fish weighing one hundred and eighty pounds, was washed ashore near Mayville, about thirty years ago. The express agent at Mayville, aged twenty-two years, who has no slouch of a memory, says he remembers distinctly of throwing said fish in the lake about three years ago. He procured it in Buffalo and was paid six dollars for the job, by parties interested in the fishery question.

—Every hotel on Chautauqua's shores is noted for the superior manner in which they serve up the native fish every day. The fish come from eastern markets.

—Herring and mackerel are plenty at Chautauqua Lake, and a skillful angler can get from ten to a hundred in half an hour's time by trolling under any of the grocery store counters, when the clerks are out.

—The usual salutation among the residents of Chautauqua and vicinity is "Well, what luck to-day?" "How does your "spoon" troll?" and "What did your fish weigh?"

A Trip Through the Oil Regions.

A prominent professional gentleman of Allegheny City who is making a jaunt through the Pennsylvania petroleum regions, writes as follows to the Pittsburg Commercial:

Outside of gratifying one's curiosity in seeing an oil well, Parker's Landing would not be a very inviting place to stop. The hotel accommodations are anything but first-class. In my opinion a good hotel here would pay as largely as a good oil well. The land in this vicinity is honeycombed with oil wells, many of which are not productive. I had a conversation with an operative at one of the wells, who informed me that in some good localities here there are as many as three wells to the acre. At Emlenton there are some good producing wells, but no large ones. Some say they have not yet got on the "pay."

At Tidioute I found a great many successful oil men living in style. Across the river are the Economite wells, which have been producing since 1860. There are many new wells on the hill. At West Hickory I found a good producing district on what is known as the Warren and Venango Oil Company's land. The owners are Pittsburgers, and they have several good wells.

Franklin, the center of the lubricating oil district, is the loveliest place in the oil regions. The people are the most affable I have yet met on my journey. There are many wealthy men here, but they generally prefer to keep their money in the safe or invest it in Government bonds rather than invest it in speculations. The Point oil region has been producing here for two years, and the same fault is here observable as at Parker's, the wells are too close together. Two Mile run, McCalmont farm and Patchell run are now the centre of attraction. On Patchell run Mr. Goss has three wells, which are producing from one hundred to one hundred and fifty barrels per day each. No. 4 is also drilling and near completion. Adjoining the latter is a well going down belonging to Mr. William Adams, of Pittsburgh. Two more wells are soon to be started, one of them by Mr Thomas Pittock, formerly of your city. Mr. Garrard, of Pittsburgh, is also sinking a well near the Goss well No. 1, with good indications. Within a short distance of the wells above noticed others are going down.

At Driftwood, in Cranberry township, I saw the Fisher well No. 2 flowing. It was a grand spectacle, to see the oil spout out at the rate of 150 or 200 barr

A German Uncle's Wedding Gift.

Here is a nice bit of gossip from the New York correspondent of the St. Louis Republican.

A dear little Boston girl has a rich relative living in Frankfort, who, upon being notified of that same little girl's approaching wedding sent her a box! I assisted at the opening. Oh, what is more delightful than getting a box!—A box with foreign shipping marks on it, and a labyrynth of directions. We four of us, the bride and I and a new driver and the new husband, got the cover and lots of paper off, and found a large paper box, containing such a lovely evening dress, a pale blue velvet trained under-dress that shade of white over the folds; over dress of pale blue silk elaborately made and trimmed with multitudes of ruches of the silk, the edges of them all finished with the narrowest Valenciennes lace; the waist of velvet with the valenciennes ruches upon it, and a deep fall of wide valenciennes forming the short sleeve. The over-dress being open showed the entire front breadth of velvet, perfectly plain. The costume was perfect; and when further search discovered a case containing a huge pair of Moorish earrings in turquoise, and a necklace of the same that matched the velvet, we all voted a German uncle in Frankfort to be the nicest thing to a German husband in America, both these articles belonging to my little Boston bride.

SOMETHING UNLOOKED FOR

Nevertheless a Fact!

J. C. HAMILTON,

Is prepared now to receive orders for, and execute the same in the best and finest style of the age, anything in the line of PAINTING, such as House, Sign, Carriage, Ornamental and Fresco Painting, Graining, Paper Hanging, Decorative or Plain.

I have had the experience of years in the business, and am a PRACTICAL WORKMAN. This, together with the fact that I have in my employ the very best artists in the several branches, enumerated above that can be found, must be a Guarantee of Good Work.

I have secured the services of late of Philadelphia, who is a good practical decorator and fresco painter, and has proven himself master of his art. I am now with him, and carries the BEST OF REFERENCES from many different parts of the United States, my GRAINER, needs no commending, for his work tells wherever he works. I claim that with my experience and employed talent, that I can give entire satisfaction in every part of the business, and do work as cheap as any other establishment of the kind in the county, or even better and cheaper considering the quality of my work, than any foreign talent that is in our midst. Now all, or any one that has anything in my line to do that will give me a chance, I will prove to their entire satisfaction that I can and will do any part or all that I assert herein, and even more. 160 sold in 90 days, and give entire satisfaction.

MR. T. U. FINCK,

Size of Cylinder.....12 by 24
Size of Valves.....3 inches
Weight of Pump.....550 lbs

This pump is not excelled for durability, simplicity and workmanship, and creates a greater vacuum with 30 to 40 per cent less power than any now in use. This Pump has Steel Spring Hinges so constructed as to create a very slight friction, and are self-packing. The valves and ports are large, to admit of a free suction and discharge of the gas. The valve seats are protected by a leather gasket on the valve to obviate any wear to the valve seat or valve.
